

The OCIO perspective on the pandemic

Investing with the right partner has never mattered more. Find out why.

Eric S. Menzer, CFA, CAIA, AIF
Global Head of OCIO and Fiduciary Solutions
Manulife Investment Management

Question: What's the OCIO perspective on today's outlook?

Yeah, it's really hard to predict the outcome of this current pandemic and where we're gonna head here, but it's really hard to predict when the next downdraft or level of uncertainty is gonna come into the market. And I think the most important here, the thing to think about here is when we're talking about private real assets, we're talking about assets that are typically less GDP-sensitive.

So these are the types of assets provide some support in times of economic uncertainty and really having an OCIO provider that can navigate these waters, choose the appropriate managers, and choose the appropriate mixes of these real assets together can really help to provide a risk management solution for investors.